He married on 3 Apr 1852 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts Nancy Cogswell LEE, born 29 Aug 1836 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts, daughter of Zaccheus LEE and Ann Steele COGSWELL.

Notes for Timothy Andrews

Timothy was a shoemaker in Essex; a spar maker; and served in the State Legislature. The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "Timothy Andrews, Jr., was born in Essex, May 7, 1829; spar-maker by trade; son of Timothy and Susan P. Andrews. Enlisted August 18, 1862, in Company A, Capt. Nelson, Thirty-ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers, infantry. Went first to Camp Cameron, and thence to Boxford at Camp Stanton. The regiment was first ordered to Poolesville, Maryland, thence to Harper's Ferry, and thence to Washington, where the Thirty-ninth were on guard for some time. They were afterwards ordered again to Harper's Ferry and Hagerstown. On the 15th of December Mr. Andrews was detailed on the ammunition train. It was at Poolesville that he slept his first sleep upon the bare ground, and it would not have been very surprising if it had proved his last. A rain came on in the night, so that when they awoke, the water was some three inches deep around them, yet so deep had been their sleep from fatigue, that they knew nothing of it till morning! Mr. A. was appointed by the Colonel to go to Washington for horses, and the character of his army life was now so far changed that his time was chiefly spent at regimental headquarters at first, and afterwards he was made carpenter at brigade headquarters. After marching to Poolesville on the 21st of December, his first duty was the erection of a hospital for the sick. In January following he was ordered for the third time to Washington for another supply of horses and mules. The 19th of August, 1864, was a disastrous day for the Thirty-ninth Massachusetts Volunteers, losing in two days, as they did, two hundred and forty men, killed, wounded and prisoners. After this date, Mr. Andrews' duties were chiefly in the ordnance office as an assistant clerk under Capt. Trembly of the One Hundred and Fourth New York Volunteers.

The compiler of this chapter regrets the small amount of space assigned to the sketch of this soldier. By far the most important and interesting page of his army life has come to hand at so late a day, (dated December 21, 1867,) that to make room for it within these limits, is utterly impossible. It will go upon file with much other unpublished though important matter, and remain for future reference."

Email from Edward Jenkins 12 Aug 2005:
"... the diary written by Sarah Belinda Preston was written in the last 2 or 3 years she lived (died of consumption). While (as one would expect) many entries were simply about the weather, temperature, winds, storms, etc., I think she (and probably her sister Anna, my g. grandmother, were quite involved socially in Essex, and as Sarah was (also) very interested in singing, she recounted several of singing session - including names of those present (some of her Mother's family - Andrews - attended, and Timothy Andrews was always there (also his future wife). This diary is in the safe keeping of my son, Robert, who lives in Balwdinville, N. Y. ..." Email from Edward Jenkins 13 July 2005: I have the actual song book used by Sarah Belinda Preston and her "singing group" prior to Civil War. "Family Circle Glee Book" ...In Sarah's diary (as I mentioned), Timothy Andrews was always among those of singing group and Dad told me Timothy's daughter became quite a famous (in area) singer and that "there was never an Andrews who couldn't 'carry a tune' and many of them seemed to have a special ability to quickly learn any musical instrument."

"Lumber was at the heart of the Aroostook War. The Madawaska territory had it, and everybody wanted it. The treaty ending the American Revolution in 1783 had not clearly defined the boundary between New Brunswick and what is now

The dispute worsened after Maine finally wrestled its statehood from Massachusetts in 1820. Surveyors were quickly dispatched to the St. John Valley, where they were surprised to find a thriving Acadian community on both banks of the St. John River. The lands on the south bank of the St. John Valley would be critical in determining whose lumber mills would receive the lumber from the vast pine forests of the region -- would the rivers flowing north into the St. John be used (favoring the Canadians), or those flowing south into the Penobscot watershed (which favored the Americans).

Determined to have American settlers on the land, the Maine state government chose to ignore British claims, and began granting land to settlers in the area. When a Maine official conducting a census in a disputed border area was arrested by New Brunswick officials, the Maine legislature dispatched a force of 200 men to the mouth of the Fish River in the winter of 1837. Congress appropriated $800,000 and raised a 10,000 soldier militia to support the Maine troops already in place. No shots were ever fired, but soldiers quickly used seized British lumber to built a blockhouse at the mouth of the Fish River. Another blockhouse and boom was built further down the Fish River at Soldier Pond. General Winfield Scott was rushed to the area to broker a deal before things got out of hand between the Maine "Red Shirts" and the New Brunswick "Blue Noses." He succeeded in arranging for a compromise agreement to be made between Congressman Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton. The border dispute became known as the "Bloodless Aroostook War". The Webster-Ashburton Treaty gave over 7,000 square miles of the disputed area, including the Aroostook valley, to the United States, and several critical waterways, including the all-important east-west passage of the St. Johns River, were opened to free navigation by both countries. The Treaty also accomplished a number of other things: it settled the U.S.-Canada border dispute in the Great Lakes region; it provided for cooperation in the suppression of the slave trade; and it arranged for a system for mutual extradition of criminals. Essentially, the Treaty served as a precedent for peaceful settlement of disputes between the United States and Canada."

Notes for William Andrews

William was a farmer and carpenter; Deputy Sheriff and Constable; a soldier in the Aroostook War in 1839 and a Lieutenant Colonel in the Maine Militia. He appears on the 1870 census for Rumford, Oxford County, Maine age 51, farmer with daughter Lillian F. age 10. The 1880 census for Rumford, Oxford County, Maine shows William age 61, farmer with wife Hannah age 46, keeping house and daughter Lillian F. age 20.

The following from:http://members.tripod.com/~Scott_Michaud/Aroostook-War.html [edited]

"Lumber was at the heart of the Aroostook War. The Madawaska territory had it, and everybody wanted it. The treaty ending the American Revolution in 1783 had not clearly defined the boundary between New Brunswick and what is now Maine. The dispute worsened after Maine finally wrestled its statehood from Massachusetts in 1820. Surveyors were quickly dispatched to the St. John Valley, where they were surprised to find a thriving Acadian community on both banks of the St. John River. The lands on the south bank of the St. John Valley would be critical in determining whose lumber mills would receive the lumber from the vast pine forests of the region -- would the rivers flowing north into the St. John be used (favoring the Canadians), or those flowing south into the Penobscot watershed (which favored the Americans)."

Determined to have American settlers on the land, the Maine state government chose to ignore British claims, and began granting land to settlers in the area. When a Maine official conducting a census in a disputed border area was arrested by New Brunswick officials, the Maine legislature dispatched a force of 200 men to the mouth of the Fish River in the winter of 1837. Congress appropriated $800,000 and raised a 10,000 soldier militia to support the Maine troops already in place. No shots were ever fired, but soldiers quickly used seized British lumber to build a blockhouse at the mouth of the Fish River. Another blockhouse and boom was built further down the Fish River at Soldier Pond. General Winfield Scott was rushed to the area to broker a deal before things got out of hand between the Maine "Red Shirts" and the New Brunswick "Blue Noses." He succeeded in arranging for a compromise agreement to be made between Congressman Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton. The border dispute became known as the "Bloodless Aroostook War".

The Webster-Ashburton Treaty gave over 7,000 square miles of the disputed area, including the Aroostook valley, to the United States, and several critical waterways, including the all-important east-west passage of the St. Johns River, were opened to free navigation by both countries. The Treaty also accomplished a number of other things; it settled the U.S.-Canada border dispute in the Great Lakes region; it provided for cooperation in the suppression of the slave trade; and it arranged for a system for mutual extradition of criminals. Essentially, the Treaty served as a precedent for peaceful settlement of disputes between the United States and Canada."

Notes for Nelson S. Savage

"Apparently Nelson Savage bought land in area called Wilson with a partner Morrill Thompson. The latter's son William married Nelson's daughter Sarah. Their was a lumber mill at Little Wilson Falls. The town of Wilson is in Range 9 part of what is now Elliotsville. It was on a 'carriage road' leading from Monson to Wilson Pond in Greenville. The town does not exist today, but was located about 12 miles deep in woods.

Barbara Savage Thompson, now living in North Carolina, told Larry Thompson [also a descendant of Nelson Savage] that in the Penobscot County Courthouse she found many land transactions during 1830-1842 between Savages. Nelson also bought property in Bangor and Orono. Barbara has pages from a typed book in the Maine Historical Library in

The following from the Elizabeth Duncan Lee reference: MARK L. ANDRUS, is almost a mystery man. His military records supplied a wealth of information not otherwise available, but there are conflicting facts and dates. There is a death certificate with information supplied by his son Paul G. Andrus who did not know, however, where Mark was born nor where his parents were born. We do know that Mark died of heart disease at Coventry, Orleans County, Vermont 30 Jun 1907, and that he was buried 3 Jul 1907 at Davenport Cemetery, Wolcott. The birth date on his gravestone is 1827, but his son gave his age as 74 (b. 1833). His wife gave his birth date as 24 May 1834 at Chelsea. Paul gave Mark's parents' names as Luther and Aurilla. Mark married at South Craftsbury, Orleans County, Vermont, 13 Mar 1867, Melissa Emmerline (Emmaline) Garvin, with the ceremony performed by J.M. Bemis. Melissa died of cancer at the home of a daughter at Craftsbury. Her home was at East Coventry, Orleans County, Vermont. Mark L. Andrus enlisted as a private in Company D, 1st Regiment Artillery at Hyde Park, 9 Aug 1862 for three years. He was appointed corporal 26 Dec 1863 and was mustered out 26 Dec 1865. He was a farmer, 5' 6 inches tall, light hair, light complexion, and blue eyes. He served at Brattleboro, Vermont and "Defenses of Washington, D.C."

Notes for Charles Sumner Andrus

Charles' family moved to a farm in Irving Township, Michigan where the years of his youth and young manhood were spent. However, Charles never liked farming or country life. At the age of 16 he had very decided upon the law as his life work. Prior to his graduation from the public schools, he had commenced the reading of law whenever opportunity offered. His father, Enoch Andrus, firmly believed that if his sons desired an education beyond the public schools, they should earn it themselves, otherwise it would not be appreciated and would be of no value to them. Accordingly, upon his graduation from Hastings High School in 1893, Charles immediately set about acquiring funds to continue his education at the University or Michigan. This he accomplished by teaching in the rural schools and later as Principal of Schools at Nashville, Michigan. During vacations, he was employed on a commission basis as a salesman for a concern publishing books for rural schools. In this venture he was so successful as to be able, not only to pay his way at the university, but was enabled to marry and found a home some three years prior to his graduation from the University Law College in 1906. He was admitted to the Bar in Illinois in 1907, and immediately entered into a law partnership at Springfield under the firm name of Andrus and Trutler. This firm was very successful from its inception. In 1916 he was appointed by Governor Lowdon to the chairmanship of the State Industrial Commission of Illinois, which position he held for the ensuing four years. In 1920 he returned to Springfield and entered the law partnership of Andrus and Friedmeyer and continued therein until the time of his death.

Charles never waited for opportunity to knock at his door he created his own opportunities. A natural leader, he was president of his class in high school, his law class in college, and was president of the Student Council, Toastmasters Club, Law Review and Law Presidents Class.

The Illinois State Journal said of him: “The end of a busy life came to Charles Sumner Andrus, able and respected member or the Sangamon County Bar, willing worker in community enterprises, former state and city official and beloved member of numerous fraternal, patriotic and religious organizations. His death was unexpected and news of his passing has called forth general appreciation of his life and regret that he has gone. Splendid testimony to the esteem to which Attorney Andrus was held by his fellows is shown by the fact that at one time or another, he was called to the headship of a majority of the organizations in which he held membership. He was a past president or the Sangamon County Bar, past president of the Cosmopolitan Club, Past High Priest of the Masonic Order, and former Chairman of the Illinois Industrial Commission. He was qualified for leadership and earned that leadership by unselfish work in the ranks. Charles Andrus found pleasure in the company of his fellows and satisfaction in working for and with them. He will be missed in any effort looking for the welfare of the community in which he lived and labored honorably and with a purpose.”

Children of Charles Sumner ANDRUS and Geneva M. WILCOXEN were as follows:

12570  i  Dorothy Geneva  ANDRUS, born 8 Jul 1906 in Springfield, Sangamon County, Illinois; died 17 Mar 1977 in Laguna Niguel, Orange County, California. She married on 23 Jan 1925 in Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan Preston DORSEY. Notes: Dorothy and Preston had no children. They had lived in Dallas, Texas.

7061. Roy  ANDRUS  (Enoch, Seymour, Jacob, John, John, John), born 1 Feb 1878 in Hastings, Barry County, Michigan; died May 1967 in East Lansing, Ingham County, Michigan; buried in Riverside Cemetery, Hastings, Michigan. He married on 15 Feb 1905 Mary A. WOOTON, born 26 Oct 1881; died Mar 1974 in East Lansing, Ingham County, Michigan; buried in Riverside Cemetery, Hastings, Michigan, daughter of James WOOTON and Elizabeth JOHNSON.

Notes for Roy Andrus

Roy was educated in the public schools in Hastings and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. After leaving school he was employed for several years by the U.S. Post Office Department as Carrier and Railway Mail Clerk. Was elected Clerk of Barry County and held that office for several years. During that employment, he continued to study law and was admitted to the bar. For many years he was Chief Adjuster for the State Accident Fund. He was an active 32nd Degree Mason.

has heard gladly by thousands of men and women during the years he has been on the lecture platform. He is a genial, lovable sort of man, with a big heart, and a big brain, a man who has labored hard and successfully for the good and the true and the beautiful, who has hob-nobbed with statesmen and magnates, and who knows most of the men who are doing things in the world of statesmanship, church work and literary work in the literary world today. Though he was born in England, no native son of Iowa is more loyal or devoted to this state and no greater pleasure could come to one who appreciates the ideal home life of a cultured, big-hearted, whole-souled man than to visit Mr. Miles and his charming family in their home at Blairstown.

"You ought to come to Blairstown" said Mr. Miles. "Blairstown isn't a very big spot on the map of the world, but it has the honor and distinction of being the home of more genuinely interesting old men than any other town I know. One of them, Mr. Hoebel, who is 81 years of age, ran a saloon in Freeport, Ill. and on the day after the memorable Lincoln-Douglas debate was held he sold beer over his bar to no less a personage than Abraham Lincoln. Another, Mr. Sterling is 86 years age; and he once helped to rule an island in the south seas as the personal friend of the chief of the tribe; another, Mr. John Hayes, who is 76 years of age was in the service of the United States on the Kearsarge when that vessel sank the confederate vessel, the Alabama, after the memorable battle. Then there's Patrick Lynch, one of the lawyers who was the youngest soldier who was really in battle during the civil war; and there are others. Yes, you really ought to come to Blairstown."

And so it happened that one delightful spring day last week, a reporter for the Sunday Republican took the morning train to Blairstown and was most cordially received at the home of this talented man and was afterwards introduced to the Blairstown celebrities. There is a great demand for Mr. Miles' services as a lecturer and he is at home less than three months in the year. And such a delightful home. In the library there are hundreds of volumes including those which are useful to him in this lecture work and also a large number of autographed author's copies which would tempt the average book collector almost to break the tenth commandment as well as the tenth.

There are also other treasures appealing to the collector and the connoisseur, such as a water bottle made in the days when the pyramids were built, some Holland pottery that was made before the first Dutch settlers came to this country and countless other curios whose value and charm are above that of rubies and fine gold.

Mr. Miles adds modesty to his other good qualities and it was for the stories of the many interesting men of Blairstown that he invited the reporter to visit Blairstown. And some of the stories, which were secured with Mr. Miles' help on that delightful day, are given herewith:

Lived With Savages but Wouldn't Wed

This Blairstown Man Had the Pick of All the Women on the Island

In the city Blairstown lives a man who, perhaps, crowded more life into five years than the average man gets in a lifetime. This man's name is James S. Sterling, and while now in his 87th year, he is still a hearty and vigorous man, and is able to work every day and is able to walk to his farm about four miles from the city as often as his presence is demanded. Mr. Sterling was born in 1822 in the western part of New York and the five years of his life from 1840 to 1846 reads like a romance.

He says it was about the year 1840 that he decided that as he was 18 years old it was time he should see some of the world. He therefore decided to try life on the ocean. To this end he hired out on the good ship Frolic which was used in the war of 1812 as fighting vessel, but which had been turned into a whaler a few years before. He stated that life on this boat was simply awful; that he was treated worse than we would ever treat a dog and that at the first opportunity he left her and thought that he would never go to sea again. But that was only the beginning. No sooner had he struck land than he was aboard a vessel again and this time on a merchantman. He stayed on this vessel nearly a year and then lived on land for a few months.

During these two voyages the captain of one of the ships was very anxious on account of his youth to teach him the science of navigation. This Mr. Sterling declined as he only cared for the excitement of sea life and had no intention of following it all his life.

It was in the early part of the year 1842 after two years before the mast that he placed articles on a whaler as a full fledged seaman with a seaman's wages coming to him when the ship should anchor in the home port. The vessel went around the Cape of Good Hope, touching at Australia and finally coming close to what was in those days Navigators Island, although the name has been changed since, it was at this place that Mr. Sterling and other seaman, tired of the hardships, ill treatment and miserable food, decided that it was time for them to part company with the whaler. To this end one night they lowered one of the ship's boats and stowing a couple of bottles of water and some hard tack away started for an island. It was one of a group of five, three fairly good sized ones and two smaller ones. All five of these islands were inhabited by savages or at least by people who were far from being civilized. For the first few days after they were on the island they remained hidden and the entire crew of the ship was detailed to get the men, dead or alive. Fortunately for them they all managed to keep concealed until the ship had lifted anchor and left. It was then that they decided to make for one of the larger islands and they started across in their boat which the crew also had not been able to find, for one of the larger islands. The distance was perhaps fifty miles and on their way they ran close to another whaler who perceiving that they were white men instantly lowered a boat in pursuit. They avoided this boat also and at last lit on one of the largest islands of the group.

The island was inhabited by a strange race who were neither black nor white, but were just a coffee brown. In describing the people Mr. Sterling said they were by far the handsomest men and women he had ever seen, before or since. Two white men at once became great favorites with the people and Mr. Sterling especially, as he was then a comely youth of twenty or thereabouts was attractive to the women. The chief also took a great fancy to him and after the party had been on the island a few months, the chief offered him a number of wives and signified his willingness to share his throne with him. The language was not hard to learn as it consisted more of a number of different grunts and movements of the hands than anything else and the strangers were able to converse with their adopted companions in a very short time. Mr. Sterling denies that he ever married one of the girls there although he was very enthusiastic in his praise of them.

He stated that the years on the island were the most pleasant of any in his life and that there was no work whatever as all that they needed to eat was amply provided by nature. Yams and breadfruits, besides all kinds of vegetables were growing in abundance — every part of the island and about all the clothes any one needed was a fig leaf. This was just about what they all wore and one very handsome woman was magnificently gowned in a coral necklace. Mr. Sterling robbed her of her entire wardrobe by trading her a piece of tobacco about the size of his finger. She seemed to be well pleased with the exchange and he said he was.

The huts were made of bamboo and life on the entire island was simplicity itself. They lived a care-free and happy existence. Several of the sailors married native women and settled down to a happy life.

The chief having taken a liking to Mr. Sterling it was no more than natural that his wife should do likewise and she repeatedly made overtures to him which he was as often compelled to refuse. The chief and his wife were mildly insistent as regarding his marriage and they caused to pass in revue every woman on the island. At that time they, that is the chief, his wife, the white men and several of the natives went to one of the neighboring islands for a visit. How far this island was from the one they were on Mr. Sterling does not know but it was not in sight when they started and it took the best part of two days to row to it. Upon their arrival the natives killed a hog. Whether it was a wild one or one that had escaped or been bought from a vessel that had touched there is unknown, but they had the hog and they killed it in honor of their visitors. It was then found that there was but very little salt to save it all for them. The natives were able to eat it anyway raw or otherwise, but at the feast they offered their white visitors every courtesy in their power. When they started for home they were loaded down with presents and were given an escort almost half way.

When asked as to whether they were treated differently at any time he stated that they were at all times treated as though they were princes. The people of the island were very democratic and the king or chief was with his subjects at all times and never asked nor received any worship at their hands.

He said they never quarreled among themselves and that the children seemed to respect their elders. After almost two years of life on the island one day a ship was sighted and she was headed for the island. The white men held a council and decided that those who were unmarried would leave and the others would remain. It was so decided and Mr. Sterling and two others took their boat and rowed out to meet the ship. The chief was up in the mountains hunting at the time and Mr. Sterling did not get a chance to bid his strange friend goodbye. The natives followed the three white men out as close to the ship as the crew would permit them to come as they were afraid of them. The only regret Mr. Sterling states had at leaving the island was that he had not had a chance to say goodbye to the old man who had treated him so kindly. As he stood on the deck of the vessel and watched the little island that been his home for so many months disappear tears welled up in his eyes. At first he thought that if he had it to do over again he would have remained on the island and spent his days peacefully and happily to the end. Later he realized that it was best for one to stay among his own race and in later years he has not regretted that he decided not to cast his lot with the Samoans as he calls them.

After this trip Mr. Sterling decided to quit the sea and after two more uneventful short trips he resided in New York for several years. In 1848 he moved to Illinois and settled on a farm and lived there for several years. In 1851 he got the "gold fever" and went to California in the latter part of the year. He was fortunate enough to make a strike the first winter and came back in the spring with enough money to pay for the farm in Illinois. After staying on the farm in Illinois three years Mr. Sterling came to Blairstown and settled, buying a farm in what was then a new country. He has resided there since and helped take care of some of the early settlers who afterwards followed him, and assisted a number of them in getting settled in their new home. Of late years he has taken several trips over the United States and only a few years ago made a trip to California, the place where he made his first strike. He is now considered the richest man in central Iowa and owns land as far west as Washington, a place where one of his children now lives and where Mr. Sterling is contemplating a visit the coming week.

After his thrilling experiences Mr. Sterling is now residing in the shadow of his home and his many grandchildren delight to hear Grandpa Sterling tell of the things he has seen and done. Withal he is a very lovable old man and to see his...

Howes, aged 27 years, ship joiner by trade, was the son of Collins and Rhoda Howes; and was born in Chatham; a widower with one child. He enlisted May 11, 1861 in the Second Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers, infantry, and left the State July 8, 1861. He was in Gen. Patterson's command at Martinsburg, under the immediate command of Gen. Banks, from August 1861, till September 1862. On the date of his enlistment he was appointed corporal, and on the 20th of June was made fourth sergeant of Company F. On the list of October 1862, he was appointed color sergeant, and on the 8th of December, following, was promoted commissary sergeant of the regiment. He was in the battle of Winchester on the 28th of August 1861, and in that at Cedar Mountain, August 8, 1862. Mr. Howes was attached to the Twelfth Army Corps at Antietam, and was in the battle of September 17, 1862; also when Burnside was crossing at Fredericksburg, this corps was held in reserve, and was not engaged in the battle. It was, however, in the battle at Chancellorsville and at Beverly Ford, also at Gettysburg. On the 2d of August, 1863, this corps was ordered to New York to quell a riot there on account of the draft, and was absent from the army four weeks. On the 24th of September 1863, they were ordered to East Tennessee to re-enforce Gen. Rosecrans, and since that time have been a part of the Army of the Cumberland. Mr. Howes had been in all the battles in which the regiment had been engaged up to the time of his promotion to the office of commissary sergeant, except during the six weeks in the Spring of 1862, when he was in the hospital at Frederic City, Md. Mr. H. re-enlisted for three years on the 30th of December 1863, as commissary sergeant of the Second Massachusetts Volunteers, infantry, and came home on a thirty days' furlough in January, 1864. Mustered out of service, August 1, 1865. Whole term of service, four years, two months, twenty days."

He married on 14 Dec 1861 Lucy Elizabeth KNOWLTON (see 7445), born 14 Nov 1843 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts, daughter of Moses KNOWLTON and Mary LUFKIN.

Notes for David Brainard Burnham

The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "David Brainard Burnham, mason by trade, was born in Essex, and was the son of John S. and Clarissa Burnham. He enlisted August 14, 1862, in Company E, Capt. Sawyer, in the Fourteenth Massachusetts Volunteers, infantry. Ten other Essex men were enlisted about the same time into the same regiment, viz: William H. Hull, Osgood E. Burnham, Albert F. Burnham, J. J. Parsons, Charles A. Burnham, John S. Jones, J. Frank Hart, Joseph W. Tucker, H. Nelson Andrews and Jeremiah Poland, Jr. They were ordered to Camp Cameron, in Cambridge, to wait for the filling up of the regiment. They finally left for Washington, August 18, 1862, and arrived there on the 20th. On the day of their arrival there, they were marched over the long bridge and stationed in different forts on Arlington Heights. While at Fort Albany, the above named Essex men were so divided and disposed of as to fill the vacancies in different companies. D. B. Burnham, W. H. Hull, A. F. Burnham, O. E. Burnham and J. J. Parsons were attached to Company E, and the remaining six to Company A. The regiment was immediately put under marching orders, and had barely time to draw clothing, and none at all to drill, before the march commenced, viz: on the 23d of August, for Cloud's Mills, eight miles from Washington. Other troops soon began to arrive, and on the following morning the field as far as eye could see, was covered with men, tents, artillery, horses, mules, etc. The Eleventh, Sixteenth and Twenty-second Massachusetts were among them. These troops had now just arrived from the Peninsula, and the whole corps were to join the army of Gen. Pope. On the 26th of August, at nine o'clock P. M., the march commenced of twelve miles, halting at two o'clock A. M. After a few hours' sleep, such as could be had upon the bare ground, they commenced a hurried march, as news had arrived that the rebels were cutting the New York Fourth Heavy Artillery in pieces. They met the New York troops retreating in a completely demoralized condition, having only two pieces of artillery. They were in a panic and left their two pieces of artillery in their flight. Our troops laid here for twenty-six hours with their rifles loaded, and no less than eleven times in that twenty-six hours were called to arms, as the rebels were trying to flank the Union troops. At six and one-half o'clock, on the 28th, orders were given to return to the forts; the order, however, was given to each man in a whisper. The object of this was but too well understood during the night following, as the rebels shelled the ground, they had just left, heavily. Our troops on their return to the Heights were so divided as to garrison eight forts, and here they remained from the 30th of August, 1862, until the month of May, 1864. Our troops while here often practiced target shooting with the large guns, the corporals acting as gunners. Each one would naturally try to excel, but it is gratifying to learn that our lamented townsman, Osgood E. Burnham, discovered quite, uncommon skill in this to him, new mode of warfare. During the twenty months' stay of our troops at this station, they were visited by distinguished persons, as the President, the Russian Embassy and others, who often addressed the troops in patriotic terms.

On the 14th of May 1864, however, orders were received to march to the front as infantry, and next day, Sunday, they took transports at Alexandria, and proceeded down the river to Belle Plains. At this time only two Essex men remained in 4342. Ibid., p. 431.

Company E, viz., D. Brainard and Osgood E. Burnham. It may be proper to say, that Parsons and A. F. Burnham, had been discharged. W. H. Hull was sick in Washington. The troops arrived at Belle Plains 17th of May, at nine o'clock, A. M., and marched thirty-four miles to Fredericksburg, and from thence to the extreme front. On the 19th says D. B. B. the subject of this sketch, at four o'clock P. M., we became engaged with Ewell's corps which had attacked a supply train.

We lost five hundred and seventeen killed and wounded, fifty-four being shot dead. The fight continued till nine o'clock P. M. The result was a Union victory. "It would be hard," says Mr. B., to describe my feelings when first going into battle, but I determined to do my duty let what would come." A ball struck his rifle out of his hand and also took off the middle finger of his left hand.

Just then he saw Osgood E, Burnham fall, having received a rifle ball in his left hip. With the aid of another soldier he carried Osgood to the rear. Osgood was too faint with loss of blood to reach the surgeon's tent and was laid for a short time in a barn, but as soon as circumstances would permit, was put into the surgeon's hands, being carried upon a stretcher by four men. That was the last time, says Mr. B. "that I ever saw my much loved cousin and brother soldier. He was a model soldier in camp and a very brave one in battle. His first and highest ambition was to do his duty. When he fell, indeed, the words "wife" and "mother " were almost the only words that fell from his lips. He at length died of lockjaw, having taken cold probably. Jeremiah Poland. Jr. also received his death wound in that battle, and H. Nelson Andrews was wounded in his hand."

Children of David Brainard BURNHAM and Lucy Elizabeth KNOWLTON were as follows:

13905  i  Winslow Lewis BURNHAM, born 17 Oct 1865 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts; died 8 Feb 1866 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts.

Notes for Daniel Burnham

The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "Daniel Burnham, aged 30 years, shoemaker; son of Nimrod and Susan Burnham; was born in Essex; enlisted, August 15, 1862, for three years, in the Thirty-ninth Regiment, Col. Davis, Company A, Capt. Nelson, and was mustered in at Camp Stanton, at Boxford. Mr. B. left Boxford with the regiment on the 6th of September, 1862, and arrived at Washington city on the 8th; marched to Arlington Heights on the 9th, and three days afterwards moved to camp Chase. The regiment marched for Edward's Ferry, on the 14th of September, where they arrived on the 17th, and here, on the banks of the Potomac, Mr. B. was first put on picket duty, and on the night of the 22d, the troops were called out to stop the rebels from crossing. October 1st, the regiment was sent to Conrad's Ferry, and on the 6th, was again ordered up the river, to prevent another threatened crossing. On the 12th, they were marched to Seneca's Mills, and on the 21st to big Muddy Branch. After remaining awhile at the cross roads, they marched to Poolesville on the 21st of December. Here the regiment remained until the 15th of April, when they again marched to Washington. During this march the rain fell heavily, and the mud was in full character with itself in a Virginia soil. The progress on the 15th was but seventeen miles. At Rockville, where the encampment was made, the rain continued through the night, the clothes of the soldiers being wet through, of course. On the next day the progress was still less, viz., but fifteen miles. The weather continued stormy, and the mud, if possible, deeper than before. On the 17th, they made but five miles. Washington seems not to have been reached till the 18th of April, when this soldier went on guard, at the army headquarters, near Gen. Halleck's office. Four hundred of the regiment were now detailed at different parts in the city, for provost duty. The troops, or a portion of them were allowed to see the lions of the Federal city, of course having themselves been "the observed of all observers." On the 6th of May, says Mr. Burnham, in a letter to the writer, "I had a pass to go round the city; went into the Capitol, Patent Office, Smithsonian Institute and President's house." Mr. B. kept a journal up to this date, at least, from which the above extracts have been made.

A short description given by Mr. Burnham, of the morals of the Essex soldiers in the Thirty-ninth, Company A, in a letter dated 8th of September, 1862, from Rappahannock station, is so honorable to them that it is transcribed entire. After speaking of Sabbath-breaking and other enormities in the army, he says: "With great pleasure I can assure you that the Essex boys respect our meetings, and enjoy the religious privileges which we have, and none of them take any part in the open profanity which prevails in the army to such a great extent; and this for one thing does me good and comforts me in what I always believe the unspeakable blessing of a Sabbath School education." On turning to the records of the largest Sabbath School in Essex, it is perceived that nine out of the fourteen soldiers in the Thirty-ninth, had been members of that Sabbath school. Mr. Burnham was killed in the Battle of the Wilderness, May 6th, 1864."

Notes for William Howe Burnham
The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "William Howe Burnham, son of Winthrop Burnham, was born in Essex, April 8, 1840. He enlisted November 27, 1861, into Company H, Capt. Devereaux, Nineteenth Massachusetts Volunteers. This company left the State, December 10th, and arrived at Philadelphia, at, ten o'clock on the evening of the same day. On the 13th of December, they were ordered up the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal to Muddy Branch Locks, Md., where they joined the regiment, which regiment formed a part of the Corps of observation on the upper Potomac. The following Winter was spent in drilling and doing guard duty until the 11th of March. Marching orders were received at that time, when the regiment to which Mr. Burnham was attached joined the brigade and proceeded up the canal to Harper's Ferry. The march was continued the same day of arriving there, to Charlestown, Va., where they encamped in an oak grove adjoining the field where John Brown was hung. There was much marching and counter-marching until the 24th of March, when they were ordered to take the cars and proceed to Washington. The troops encamped just back of the Capitol until the 28th, when they proceeded to Fortress Monroe and thence on the march to Hampton, where Gen. McClellan was encamped with one hundred thousand strong. On the 4th of April, they marched up the Peninsula to Big Bethel, and thence to Yorktown the next day. They were under fire for the first time on the 7th of April, losing, however, but one man killed and two wounded. They remained in front of Yorktown until its evacuation by the rebels, on the 3d of May.

Mr. Burnham's statements are full, explicit and interesting, but somewhat more voluminous than the already swollen size of the book will warrant us in inserting. He (Mr. B.) was discharged from the service on the 11th of March, 1863. The following is a synopsis of his service in the army: entered and discharged as above stated: April 7, 1861, in skirmish at Yorktown; April 7th, to 4th May; at the siege of Yorktown; May 7th; in the battle at West Point; June 25th; at Fair Oaks, June 29th; at the battles at Orchard Station and Savage's Station; June 30th, at Glendale; July 1, at Malvern Hills." The following is as sketch from the same reference that gives information on the service of the unit: "This sketch of John A. Butman may also be considered as applying to the following named soldiers, who enlisted at the same time, except wherein it is strictly personal, viz : William A. Andrews, Charles E. Andrews, Ruben Andrews, Ancill K; Butman, Charles F. Morse, Thomas A. Morse, John B. Burnham and William Howe Burnham. He "enlisted at Essex, November

27, 1861, and was mustered and sworn" in, December 10th, following. The above named soldiers left Salem on the same day, December 10th for Muddy Bank, say thirty-five miles above Washington city, and remained there until the 11th of March, 1862. On that day, they were ordered to strike their tents and move down the Potomac some sixteen miles to Edward's Ferry; halted there for refreshments the same afternoon, and immediately went on board a canal boat and proceeded up the river till midnight. " On the next morning we were towed to Harper's Ferry. Leaving the boat at that place we crossed the river on a pontoon bridge, and marched in a southerly direction about two miles into Virginia, and thence on to Winchester. At Berrysville, we found the road lined with Union soldiers, shouting victory; being now returning from the battle of Winchester. We learned that all the dwellings between us and Winchester, were filled with the dead and dying. We were now ordered into line and marched by the very field where John Brown was banged. We were soon after halted and remained two nights in "a grove near Gen. Banks' headquarters, and thence proceeded to Bolivar, a small town where most of the houses had been evacuated. Our regiment was divided into squads, large or small, according to the size of the house we were to empty. The roads were very muddy and the weather very rainy. Some twenty men were detailed to procure a supply of straw for the men to sleep upon. In about one week more we were ordered to the Soldiers Retreat at Washington."

The 1880 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows William H. age 40, farmer and wife Ellen, age 38, keeping house, and children Lizzie B. age 18 and William H. age 16, both at home.

Children of Ellen F. BURNHAM and William Howe BURNHAM were as follows:

13960 ii Lizzie A. BURNHAM, born 1859 in Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts.

Notes for Mark Francis Burnham
Mark enlisted on 15 Dec 1863 in the 2nd Massachusetts Cavalry. He was first ordered to Long Island in Boston Harbor, then to join the regiment in Vienna, Virginia for drilling. His first day's ride was from three o'clock in the morning until two o'clock the following morning; twenty-three hours with three short stops for a distance of sixty miles. On dismounting, he fell to the ground from fatigue. Mark fought at Ashby's Gap, Fort Stevens, Rockville, Poolesville, Summit Point, Halltown, Opequan, Winchester, Waynesboro, Cedar Creek, South Anna, White Oak Road, Berryville, Charlestown, Dinwiddie Court House, Five Forks, Appomattox Court House and he was present at the grand consummation of the War at the surrender of Lee's army. Four horses were shot from beneath him in these battles, two of them at Winchester. In June 1864, six men beside himself were detailed to go up the canal, to Point of Rocks, in a boat with rations. While on shore they were surprised by about forty of Mosby's guerrillas. As they advanced, he seven Union soldiers fired their guns and retreated; four were captured at once. Mark, with two others, fell into a ditch somewhat concealed by the tall overhanging grass. The two others surrendered themselves, but he was not discovered. Five of the seven men died amid the horrors of Libby Prison, and one alone, beside himself escaped to tell the story. He was mustered out at Fairfax Court House 22 July 1865.

Notes for Francis Gilbert Mears

The 1860 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Gilbert Mears age 23, rope maker with wife Mary Eliza age 26 and son Charles Gilbert Mears age 1/12. The 1870 census for Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Eben Peabody age 36, works in shoe factory with wife Mary E. age 36 and Charles G. M[ears] age 10, attending school. The 1880 census for Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Ebenezer Peabody age 46; Mary E. age 46; Charles G. Mears age 20. The 1910 and 1920 census for Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Mary E. Peabody ages 75, 86, widow living alone.

The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "Francis G. Mears, son of William H. and Mary Ann Mears, was born September 1837, at Essex. He enlisted in the Forty-eighth Massachusetts, Col. Stone, Company E, Capt. Howes; died at Baton Rouge, June 21, 1863. The military life and its honorable though painful close in death, is sufficiently narrated in the sketch of the Forty-eighth, by Capt. Howes, page 364 and onward, but may be recapitulated here in part. He had had a sickness at the arsenal hospital previous to that of which he died, but so far recovered as to rejoin the regiment on the 17th of April, 1863. He was, however, taken down again on the 4th of May, following, and was at once removed to the hospital. He grew sick rapidly and as Capt. H. states, " appeared to be failing fast." He improved somewhat afterwards, it appears, as by the journal of the ever attentive Captain it appears that "on the 9th of the month, Mr. Mears was somewhat improving." It has been often remarked, however, that there is one foe, which even the bravest and the best cannot meet, and before which all alike must fall. And accordingly, on the 21st of June, 1863, this youthful warrior laid off his mortal armor forever, and like multitudes of others, many of whom were no doubt equally brave, sleeps on the banks of the mighty Mississippi at Baton Rouge. It should have been before slated that Mr. Mears was in the line of promotion when taken sick, having been made a sergeant."

He married on 23 Nov 1864 Elizabeth J. MILLIKEN, born 20 Mar 1844 in Saco, York County, Maine; died 13 Jun 1911 in Seattle, King County, Washington, daughter of Joseph MILLIKEN and Nancy WATERHOUSE.

Notes for John Randolph Andrews

With the distinction which few men can truly claim --that of having served his country in the Civil War and in the World War -- the late Capt. John R. Andrews certainly deserved the commendations, which were so freely bestowed upon him. Although in the World War he was not able to enter into the activities of the campaign overseas, he performed most important work in one of the Government shipyards, where he was in charge of designing and construction.

Capt. Andrews was born in Scarborough, Cumberland County, Maine, Sept. 25, 1841 the son of James and Maria (Chase) Andrews. His early education he obtained in the public schools of Saco and Biddeford and he later attended the academy at limington, York County, Maine, from which he graduated. He taught school in Cumberland Mills for a time and then took a position with the firm of Chadwick & York at "Kings Corners", Biddeford. At the end of a year with this concern he became associated with Louis 0. Cowan, then editor of the Biddeford "Journal".

When the Civil War broke out the State of Maine was called upon for a regiment of cavalry and Capt. Andrews hastened to enlist in the troop. He was mustered into the regiment on Sept. 20,1861, and into the service of the United States Government on Oct. 31, of the same year. On Sept. 1,1862, he was commissioned second lieutenant; and he quickly rose to first lieutenant and then to the rank of captain. He fought all through the war and was honorably discharged in 1865. He returned to Saco for a short time and then moved to Iowa, where he became interested in farm lands. In 1866 he was appointed an officer in the Pension Department and for four years resided in Washington. Returning to Saco at the close of his term in the Pension Department, Capt. Andrews was appointed postmaster of that town, which office he held for 12 years. He then went to Ohio and engaged in business as a railroad contractor. After four years of this work he was for some time in the various gold fields of the West as superintendent of mines for a New York syndicate. In this capacity he was also engaged at different times in the graphite mines of New Jersey and in the iron mines at Gouverneur, New York. In 1906 he returned to Saco and established a boat-building plant on the bank of the Saco River. After three years in Saco, Capt. Andrews closed his plant and moved to Seattle, Washington, where he opened a similar establishment. He remained in Seattle until 1915, when he returned to Maine, with the intention of retiring from active business. Two years later the United States was drawn into the World War and Capt. Andrews, although 76 years old, at once volunteered his services to the Government. He was placed in charge of designing and made superintendent of construction in the Atlantic Ship Yards, at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where he remained until the close of hostilities.

As an example of Capt. Andrews' skill in the designing of yachts, it may be mentioned that in this line of work, his name is known in every port where yachts are built. It is recalled that in 1917 the "Rudder Magazine" announced a contest that was open to nautical draftsmen throughout the world. This was the designing of a yacht for "Barney" Barnatto, the well-known South African diamond millionaire. After many designs had been carefully examined, Capt. Andrews was

The Descendants of Lieut. John Andrews of Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts. by Betty Andrews Storey 2009 announced to be the winner of the contest. His many contributions to the various nautical magazines were always very interesting to all yachtsmen.

On Nov. 16, 1865, following his honorable discharge from the United States Amy, and upon his return to Saco, Capt. Andrews was married to Elizabeth J. Milliken, the daughter or Joseph and Nancy (Waterhouse) Milliken, the latter a prominent carpenter of that town.

On Feb. 14, 1925, the active career of Capt. Andrews was ended by his death. His loss was most deeply mourned by his devoted family and by the true, firm and loyal friends he had made in Saco and in his many journeying throughout the country. He will be long remembered as a splendid example of a loyal citizen of his country, state and community, and as a man who ever gave the best that was in him to whatever line or endeavor in which he entered.

Notes for Arthur Corbett Huntley

Children of Arthur Corbett Huntley and Maria Francisca Duker
- 2. Isabel Huntley, born 1912 in California.

Notes for Amy Elizabeth Shorman
- Minerva Gray tells a story about "Aunt Amy": When Aunt Amy Sherman was a girl, one day she was down in the Morrill Field gathering berries, and a large black snake wound himself tightly all around her leg (that was how a snake would like a small animal, by squeezing it). She was very frightened, so she screamed. Her mother, Ruth (Allen) Sharman, heard the screams, went to Amy's aid, but had an awful time; it was quite a long time before Ruth could get the snake to unwind himself from Amy's leg (she probably used a stick).

Notes for George B. Bearman
- George Bearman was from South Hampton, England and served in the English Navy prior to coming to Robbinston, Maine. (The story is that he jumped ship in St. John, N.B.). After his marriage, he and his wife lived on the Calvin Sharman homestead on Sharman Hill (later called Bearman Hill) in Robbinston, Maine, which was Amy's birthplace.

Children of Amy Elizabeth Shorman and George B. Bearman
- 1. William Adam Bearman, born 3 Jul 1885 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; died 20 Mar 1886.
- 4. Lillian Ethel Bearman, born 11 Aug 1892; died 29 Nov 1892.
- 5. Ruth Annie Bearman, born 20 May 1894 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; died 1989 in Brewer Cemetery, Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. She married (1), [then divorced] Raymond Dodge; (2) Melvin Lyons.

9180. Edward Harris\(^8\) SHARMAN\(^{4460}\) (Ruth\(^7\) Allen, William\(^6\), Ruth\(^5\) Andrews, Ephraim\(^4\), Jonathan\(^3\), William\(^2\), John\(^1\)), born 2 Jul 1869 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. He married Caroline POTTER.

Children of Edward Harris SHARMAN and Caroline POTTER were as follows:

14617 i Iva\(^9\) SHARMAN. She married Delmas PORTER.

14618 ii Mildred\(^9\) SHARMAN. She married H. MERRITT.

9181. William Allen\(^8\) SHARMAN\(^{4461}\) (Ruth\(^7\) Allen, William\(^6\), Ruth\(^5\) Andrews, Ephraim\(^4\), Jonathan\(^3\), William\(^2\), John\(^1\)), born 9 Sep 1872 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; died 4 Nov 1959 in Coopers Mills, Maine; buried in Brewer Cemetery, Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. He married on 14 Jul 1894 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine Clara Estella NASH, born 9 Aug 1873 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; died 21 Mar 1950 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; buried 23 Mar 1950 in Brewer Cemetery, Robbinston, Washington County, Maine, daughter of Jacob ROAK, Jr. and Emeline Gerry NASH.

Notes for William Allen Sharman
William Allen Sharman was called "Allen". He worked in Robbinston Maine at various jobs at various times, including as a farmhand, lumberjack (one winter at Wytopitlock, Maine), granite quarry worker (Red Beach Granite), plaster mill worker, farmer, and sardine factory worker (Holmes Sardine Factory, where his wife and daughters also worked).

Notes for Clara Estella Nash
Clara Estella Nash was called "Stell". She was the illegitimate daughter of Emeline Gerry Nash of Robbinston, Maine and Jacob Roak, Jr. of Auburn, Maine. Clara was raised by her grandparents, Isaac William Nash and Almira Swett (Loring) Nash of Robbinston, Maine.

Children of William Allen SHARMAN and Clara Estella NASH were as follows:

14619 i Ruth Almira\(^9\) SHARMAN, born 30 Sep 1894 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. She married Harry BURGESS. Notes: Ruth worked in the Holmes Sardine Factory in Robbinston, Maine, with her family when she was a girl. She also worked in a candy factory in Calais, Maine. She attended Calais Academy and boarded with the Beckett Family in Calais, Maine. After graduating from the Academy, Ruth taught school in Washington County, Maine. She later trained to be a nurse in Massachusetts before marrying Harry Burgess (who was from Little Ridge, New Brunswick, Canada). After their marriage, Ruth and Harry lived in Perry, Maine, then moved to Barre, Massachusetts.

+ 14620 ii Minerva Allen \(^9\) SHARMAN, born 18 Sep 1896 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. She married Roger Alton GRAY.

9182. David Bellvue \(^8\) SHERMAN\(^{4462}\) (Ruth\(^7\) Allen, William\(^6\), Ruth\(^5\) Andrews, Ephraim\(^4\), Jonathan\(^3\), William\(^2\), John\(^1\)), born 20 Oct 1875 in Robbinston, Washington County, Maine; died 5 Mar 1964; buried in Brewer Cemetery, Robbinston, Washington County, Maine. He married (1) Laura DIFFIN, born about 1876; died 21 Jul 1913; (2) Jane CHAMBERS.

Notes for David Bellvue Sherman
David Sharman decided to change his middle name to "Bernard" and the spelling of his surname to "Sherman." He was a soldier, serving in Europe during World War I. He and his first wife, Laura, had six children before she died of tuberculosis. He had no children by his second wife, Jennie. On "Uncle Dave's" gravestone: "David B. Sherman, Maine, Mech, Co 1, 103 Infantry, World War 1". After the death of his first wife Laura, relatives were raising the children. Near the outbreak of World War I, Dave enlisted in the Canadian Army, but was discharged after a while because a recent broken leg interfered with his ability to hike long distances. So, Dave enlisted in the American Army, and was sent overseas, to France.

Notes for Laura Diffin

Laura Diffin was from Robbinston, Maine, and was a sister to Alvia Diffin (who was Darrel Diffin's father). Laura Diffin came down with tuberculosis. Her husband Dave began building a house on top of “Sharman Hill” in Robbinston, thinking that living on the hill would be good for her health. But when he got the frame up, she said she wouldn't move out there. So Dave bought a piece of land next to the Town Hall in Robbinston Village and moved the house there. (In the process of moving the house, as Dave was on a utility pole cutting the last wire over the road, so the house could be moved, the pole fell with Dave on it. Dave was in the hospital a while with a broken leg). By the time of this house moving, Laura had been sent to a tuberculosis sanitarium in Massachusetts. Just before Laura was sent to the sanatorium, she asked different relatives to take some of her children. Clara Sharman said she'd take Oscar (she liked Oscar the best of them all). A few days before Laura was to go away to Massachusetts, Clara and Minerva were visiting her, and she said to Clara: "You might as well take Oscar home with you today." Laura told Minerva where to find Oscar's little red suit in the cabinet, and Minerva got it. They took Oscar home. Ruth (Allen) Sharman said she'd take Irving; she was then quite an old lady, but she took in Irving. Laura's sister took her two girls. Louis was able to live with a family in exchange for doing work.

Children of David Bellvue SHERMAN and Laura DIFFIN were as follows:

14621 i Lloyd SHERMAN.
14622 ii Richard SHERMAN, born 1892.
14623 iii Josephine SHERMAN, born 1895.
14624 iv Dennis SHERMAN, born 1900.
+ 14625 v Louis SHERMAN, born 14 May 1901; died Jul 1948 in Massachusetts. He married Mary (---).

Notes for Ellsworth Chandler Buzzell

Mr. Buzzell has always been deeply interested in politics and public affairs, he has served his community and state in various official capacities and in addition to his active civic affairs, is one of the leaders in the farming and lumber industries in the state of Maine. He has ever taken a constructive interest in local events, receiving the cooperation and commendation of his fellow citizens. When he served in the Legislature as a Representative elected from his district, he gained an enviable record as a statesman of sterling worth and unusual ability.

Mr. Buzzell was born in Fryeburg, Nov. 3, 1869, son of Benjamin F. and Ruth J. (Wiley) Buzzell. He received his education at Fryeburg Academy and after his graduation from that institution of learning, entered the business world and was soon a prominent factor in the agricultural and timber industries, steadily advancing through his infatiguble energy and thorough knowledge of the details of both these trades. An ardent supporter of the Republican Party, he was a popular candidate in many elections to fill various town offices, and he served as the street commissioner, selectman, and State highway inspector while in the service of the commonwealth he was a valuable member of the State Legislature for a number of years. His political policy has always been one of unselfish devotion to the interests of his constituents, having the welfare and the progress of his district and the state in mind and consistently striving to secure for his fellow citizens the benefits of modern and intelligent legislation. Mr. Buzzell is prominently identified with the leading fraternal societies in the county, being active in Free and Accepted Masons (being Past Master), the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the local Grange.

The 1910 census for Fryeburg, Oxford County, Maine shows E. The Methodist minister refused to marry them under the circumstances. How they were married, he did not state." They were married by Joseph Griffing, Justice of the Peace on March 7, 1860.

Notes for Chauncey Hobart Norris

The following from "Portrait and Biographical Album, Johnson & Pawnee Counties, Nebraska", Chicago: Chapman Bros. 1889. "Hon. Chauncey H. Norris, a prominent merchant of Pawnee County, occupies a leading position among the influential and honored citizens of Table Rock, where he is engaged in the mercantile business, being an extensive dealer in dry goods, groceries, and general merchandise. He is also the possessor of a fine farm of 410 acres in Sheridan precinct, 250 acres of it lying in Section 5 and the other 160 acres of it in Section 4. Mr. Norris was born in Canton, Illinois on January 17, 1836, was educated in the public schools, and in 1858, came to Nebraska Territory where he was engaged as a clerk in a store at Falls City, Richardson County. He left to go back to Illinois for a time, but then came back to Nebraska Territory in 1859, bringing a stock of merchandise from St. Louis. He opened a store in Table Rock. Since he couldn't sustain the business in Table Rock, he moved to Falls City, Nebraska where he remained until 1862. In August, 1862, he sold his stock of goods and enlisted in the 2nd Nebraska Cavalry, to assist in protecting the frontier.
against the ravages of the Indians, being mustered in as First Lieutenant of Company G. His regiment, under command of Gen. Alfred Sully, served principally along the Missouri and in Dakota, having been sent to that Territory for the punishing of the Sioux Indians. Lieut. Norris was in a severe engagement in the White Stones Hills, September 3, 1863, many being killed and wounded in that battle. In October, the regiment was ordered to Omaha, where his term of enlistment having expired, was honorably discharged, December 4, of that year. He next engaged in buying and shipping stock, but not finding that sufficiently remunerative, in 1865 he bought half interest in his old stock of goods and conducted business, in partnership with D.R. Holt, until February, 1866, when a severe fire burned them out. Mr. Norris subsequently procured the appointment of U.S. Agent for the Sac and Fox Indians of Iowa, with headquarters at the Great Nemaha Agency, serving acceptably as such until June, 1869, when the Quaker policy went into effect and his services were no longer needed.

Mr. Norris then entered the mercantile trade in Table Rock, opening a general store in the latter part of 1869, the only store here for three or four years, and has since carried on a flourishing trade, his establishment being the most extensive store in general merchandise in the town. He is a popular merchant, ever courteous and attentive to his customers, having the reputation of being honest and square dealing in all business transactions, and is highly esteemed for his manly and sterling character. In 1869, Mr. Norris was appointed Postmaster for Table Rock. He was an original stockholder for the Table Rock Creamery. Elevated standards of public schools....served on school board. 1884 he was elected to State Senate. 1886 - elected to State Legislature."

The 1880 census for Table Rock, Pawnee County, Nebraska shows Chauncey Norris age 44, merchant with wife Fannie age 38 and children: Charles age 19; Clarissa E. age 18; Sue L. age 16; Frank M. age 14; Royal age 5; Horace L. age 3; Clinton C. age 1. JOHNSTON, born 15 Jul 1846 in Beaufort, Beaufort County, South Carolina; died 15 Aug 1907 in Lake Beulah, Walworth County, Wisconsin; buried in Calvary Cemetery, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin.

Notes for Ellen Augusta Story

"Around 1873, Horace and Eunice's daughter married Robert A. Johnston (of Johnston Bros. Biscuit Co.) They had four children; the three boys attended Marquette University and one joined the Jesuit order. Daughter Jessie married and moved to California. Ellen and Robert were involved with Marquette University, giving $110,000, in 1906, towards construction of the new Liberal Arts Building. In 1925 the new Marquette High School Building was dedicated as the Ellen Story Johnston Memorial."

Notes for Robert A. Johnston

In 1879, A. H. Johnston & Sons was changed to Johnston Brothers on the death of his father. In June 1890 this firm joined American Biscuit Manufacturing Co. that became part of the "Biscuit Trust". It was called National Biscuit and R.A. managed the Johnston Brothers Plant in Milwaukee until 1899, when he built an independent factory at the corner of Florida and Clinton. At that time he withdrew from National Biscuit and organized the Robert A. Johnston Co., in competition with the Biscuit Trust. Their big house at 2313 W. Wisconsin was torn down in the 1930's. It's architects were Crane and Barkhausen, who also designed Johnston Hall at Marquette University.

News clipping from Sept. 2, 1895, Milwaukee:
"An elegant $40,000 mansion is being built for Robert A. Johnston, the cookie and candy maker, on Grand Avenue near 24th Street. The early French Gothic styled residence will feature a large parlor, sitting room, library, dining room, conservatory, kitchen and servants' room on the first floor. The second story will contain six bedrooms and three baths. The basement will have a billiard room, wine cellar and engine room. Specially designed electric and gas fixtures will adorn the residence. Adjacent to the home will be a barn large enough to accommodate six horses and five carriages."

Children of Ellen Augusta STORY and Robert A. JOHNSTON were as follows:
15452 i Robert S. JOHNSTON, born 11 Dec 1874 in Milwaukee, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin; died 18 Feb 1944 in Milwaukee, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin; buried in Calvary Cemetery, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin. Notes: Robert S. Johnston graduated from Marquette College with a degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1881. The same year he entered the novitiate of the Order of the Jesuits at Florisant, Missouri, and for three years pursued a course of study there. This was followed by a three year course in philosophy and science at St. Louis University. Then for a brief period of four years he was professor of the classics, English and mathematics at Detroit College and served in a like capacity at St. Xavier's College of Cincinnati for another year. At the end of that time he went to St. Louis and spent four years in post-graduate study preparatory to entering the priesthood. In 1905 Robert was ordained as a priest of the Roman Catholic Church and in August, 1907, became a professor of classics, English and history in Marquette University, the position which he has since filled. He is not a member of any political party, but takes a keen interest in public affairs and exercises his right of franchise to what he judges is the best advantage of the community. Father Johnston is a member of the Society of Jesus.

+ 15453 ii Harry Stuart Johnston, born 26 Nov 1876 in Milwaukee, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin; died 2 Nov 1967 in Milwaukee, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin. He married Jessie Ann Norbeck.

Notes for Albert L. Story

Obituary from "The Milwaukee Sunday Telegram", 25 Jan 1925: Mr. Story was a member of one of Milwaukee's earliest families being the son of Mr. & Mrs. Hiram F. Story who settled on a homestead west of the Grand Avenue viaduct in the early thirties. He was educated in the public schools of the city and attended the Milwaukee Academy. For several years he was in the timber business at Saginaw, Michigan. A short time later he came to Milwaukee and after a short time with the Elmore Coal Company, joined his father in the operation of the Story Brothers quarry. He was actively engaged in the business until his final illness. For several years, Mr. Story was the treasurer of the Wauwatosa Stone Company. Notes for Henry Mills Fuller
The following is from the Giddings reference: After graduating with high honors at Princeton College, in 1838, Henry commenced reading Law under his father's instructions, but soon moved to Wilkes-Barre, and pursued his studies in the office of the late Hon. George W. Woodward, and was admitted to the practice of the law, by the court of Luzerne County, in 1840.
He was successful in his profession, and popular in his social intercourse with the people; and although a very decided Whig in politics, and his county very largely democratic, his acknowledged business talent, and honest desire for the prosperity of his county and the state was such that he was twice elected to represent his county in the State Legislature, and twice to represent his district in Congress and, whether in the Legislature or in Congress, he so performed his duties as to secure the approbation of the mass of his intelligent constituents, and to gain the respect and honor of his fellow members.
He was active in promoting objects of public good, and liberal in aiding such objects peculiarly; and, by his example in such liberality, he induced others of greater ability, but less liberality, to become co-operators with him.
In 1856, for the convenience of giving more attention to some matters of business with which he was entrusted, he moved to Philadelphia, and continued to reside there to the time of his death. He married Sep. 18, 1843, Harriet J. Thorpe of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. He died Dec. 26, 1860, in his 41st year.

Notes for Oliver Franklin Fuller

The following from the Giddings reference: Oliver Fuller attended district school till the age of fifteen, when he went to Peekskill, New York, and became clerk to an apothecary, Dr. Brewer, where he remained five years, and then started a drug store, in company with a Mr. Dain. Within two years he was obliged to sell his interest in the store in consequence of ill health. In 1852, he went to Chicago, Illinois, and started a drug business in company with Myron P. Roberts, which was dissolved in two years. He continued alone two years, and then formed a co-partnership with Charles E. Perkins and Edward B. Finch, under the firm name of 0. F. Fuller & Co. In 1858 Mr. Perkins retired, and in 1859 the store was burned out. In 1862, Henry W. Fuller, formerly of Maine, was admitted to the firm that bore the name of Fuller, Finch & Fuller, till 1871, when Mr. Finch retired and the firm took the style of Fuller & Fuller. 0. F. Fuller is about 5 feet 10 inches in height, well proportioned, with dark hair and eyes; has a very pleasant face, remarkable executive ability, and great firmness of character.

When he started business in Chicago, in 1852, the city numbered 35,000 inhabitants, and his first year's business amounted to $52,000. But the business steadily increased till, in 1880, it amounted to over a million and three quarters. The house is the largest of the kind in the northwest, and their store, which comprised Nos. 20,22,24,26, and 28 Market Street, was the only wholesale building of any kind left standing, in the whole city, by the fire of 1871. In April 1882, the firm moved to the new building erected expressly for them, on the corner of Randolph and Franklin Streets, Chicago, which is probably, without exception, the most magnificent drug store in the world. Its dimensions are 180 by 50 feet, and seven stories in height with basement. Mr. Fuller is the oldest wholesale druggist in the city, and is an honorary member of the Chicago Pharmaceutical Association. He married in Peekskill, New York, Nov. 9, 1858, Phebe Ann Shipley, and had sons: Henry M., Frank R., and Charles, aged respectively (1882) about 20, 18, and 14 years.

Children of Oliver Franklin FULLER and Phebe Ann SHIPLEY were as follows:

15936 i  Henry M. 9 FULLER, born 1862 in Peekskill, Westchester County, New York.

+ 15938 iii  Charles 9 FULLER, born Aug 1868 in Peekskill, Westchester County, New York; died 11 Nov 1918. He married Mary A. (---).

COMSTOCK and Harriet (---).

Notes for John Edward Northrop
John was brought up on the farm, under the genial influence of his father's society, who treated him more as a companion than as a son. He received a thorough education at Sharon, Connecticut, Bergen Hill Institute, New Jersey Williston Seminary, East Hampton, Massachusetts, graduating at the latter, and in the scientific department of Yale College. He is a man of good judgment, and excellent business capacity. He became a member of the Congregational Church at the age of 16 years, and has always been prominent in church and society matters, and frequently called to take the lead on committees. In 1871, he was Republican candidate for State Senator in the eleventh district. He owns one of the best farms in Sherman, but is at present [1882] connected with the Comstock-Cheney Ivory Manufacturing Co., Centrebrook, Connecticut of which he is secretary and treasurer. Correspondence of the company from the early summer of 1876 shows Comstock and Cheney supplying ivory to more than a dozen piano and organ manufacturers, not to mention companies that made billiard tables and other ivory objects. For more than a century, Connecticut was a center of ivory knowledge, the center of ivory manufacturing in America and a world leader in the business.

and she under Francis C. Albro. She was born in Jackson County, Michigan, and he in Henrietta, Jackson County, Michigan. This was his second marriage and her first. The fathers of each are not mentioned on the marriage certificate. They were married by A. D. Goodson. Witnesses: Marion K Ginels and Carrie L. Ginels from Onondaga. Recorded on June 4 1875. William was married first to one Elizabeth Washburn. There seems to be several dates for this marriage. On a "Declaration for Pension" dated some time in 1920, it is stated that they were married on July 22, 1869 and divorced July, 1870. On a Bureau of Pensions form, he states that he was married to Elizabeth Washburn on July 22, 1870, and divorced in 1874. On a form "Declaration of a Widow for Accrued Pension" Francis indicates that William served in Co. B 7th Inf. Vols. Further, she states that he re-enlisted under an assumed name of George Nellis and received a second honorable discharge, but that the papers proving this were burned in a fire.

On his "Declaration for Pension", dated (29 June, 1923) William states that he is 79 years of age and he also states as follows: On the 12th of August, 1861, he was enrolled in the Civil War, at Leslie, Mich. under the name of William N. Giddings as a Private in Co. B., 7th Mich. Inf. He was honorably discharged at Camp Benton, Maryland on the 22nd of November 1861. He also states that he has served in no other services. He was 5ft 7 in. with a lt. complexion, blue eyes, with brown hair, that he is a farmer and a stone mason, and that he was born at Linden, Genesee Co. Mich. At age 79 he has had 2 strokes, has heart trouble, rheumatism, and varicose veins. He signs his name with an X. William received 72 dollars per month pension.

On William's "Certificate of Disability for Discharge" it states that he was under the command of Captain Philip McKernan of the Mich. Inft. 7th Reg. Vols. He enlisted on the 22 of August 1861 to serve 3 years and was born in Michigan. This was his second marriage and her first. The fathers of each are not mentioned on the marriage certificate. He enlisted on the 22 of August 1861 to serve 3 years and was born in Jackson Co. Mich. The only irregularity (and perhaps it is a misprint) is that he is listed as 5 ft 4 in high. Hair color and eye color are the same as above. He is recommended for discharge on account of: "During the last two months said soldier has been unfit for duty thirty days. Said William A. Giddings appeared to be healthy when enlisted but since has been taken with Diarrhea and it can not be stopped here in camp. Date; Oct, 8th 1861, at Camp Benton near Poolsville, Maryland. It is signed by John B. Howell, Commander of Co. "B" The medical reasons are certified by, Cyrus Bacon, the Asst. Surgeon. William is discharged on the 31st day of Oct. 1861 at Camp Benton, Maryland. On Oct. 23 1861, from the Maryland. It is signed by John B. Howell, Commander of Co. "B" The medical reasons are certified by, Cyrus Bacon, the Asst. Surgeon. William is discharged on the 31st day of Oct. 1861 at Camp Benton, Maryland. Notes for Charles Edwin Andrews

The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "Charles Edwin Andrews, aged 26 years, shoemaker; was the son of Ira and Martha Andrews, and was born in Essex. He enlisted in Company H, Capt. Devereaux, Nineteenth Regiment. They were, as before stated, Ordered to join the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Andrews was in the battle at Yorktown, and was killed by a ball through his head, in the seven days' fight on the Peninsula, at White Oaks. This battle was on the last day of May and first day of June, 1862, and he sleeps with multitudes or others on the banks of the Chicahominy River. It is said or him, that from "the time or his enlistment, he had a premonition or the final event, and while putting on the military dress at Salem, made some remark to a comrade strongly indicative of the sad result. Reference may also be had to the sketch of J. C. Butman, page 424. [The following is that sketch]: "This sketch of John A. Butman may also be considered as applying to the following named soldiers, who enlisted at the same time, except wherein it is strictly personal, viz : William A. Andrews, Charles E. Andrews, Ruben Andrews, Ancill K; Butman, Charles F. Morse, Thomas A. Morse, John B. Burnham and William Howe Burnham. . . enlisted at Essex, November 27, 1861, and was mustered and sworn" in, December 10th, following. The above named soldiers left Salem on the same day, December 10th for Muddy Bank, say thirty-five miles above Washington city, and remained there until the 11th of March, 1862. On that day, they were ordered to strike their tents and move down the Potomac some sixteen miles to Edward's Ferry; halted there for refreshments the same afternoon, and immediately went on board a canal boat and proceeded up the river till midnight. "On the next morning we were towed to Harper's Ferry. Leaving the boat at that place we crossed the river on a pontoon bridge, and marched in a southerly direction about two miles into Virginia, and thence on to Winchester. At Berryville, we found the road lined with Union soldiers, shouting victory; being now returning from the battle of Winchester. We learned that all the dwellings between us and Winchester, were filled with the dead and dying. We were now ordered into line and marched by the very field where John Brown was hanged. We were soon after halted and remained two nights in "a grove near Gen. Banks' headquarters, and thence proceeded to Bolivar, a small town where most of the houses had been evacuated. Our regiment was divided into squads, large or small, according to the size of the house we were to empty. The roads were very muddy and the weather very rainy. Some twenty men were detailed to procure a supply of straw for the men to sleep upon. In about one week more we were ordered to the Soldier's Retreat at Washington."

The 1860 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Ansil Butman age 39 with wife Alsa [as written] age 38 and children; including Charles H. The Descendants of Lieut. John Andrews of Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts. by Betty Andrews Storey  2009

Shields, Northumberland, England; died 1936; buried in Barnes Cemetery, Barnes, London, S.W.

Notes for Levi Smalley Andrews

Levi's gravestone in Barnes' Cemetery, Barnes, London, S,W", is inscribed: "Captain Levi Smalley Andrews, born at Andrews Island, State of Maine, U.S.A." He removed to England, and married, June 19, 1861, Margaret Lumley Callahan of North Shields, England, she born there Feb. 29, 1844. Her mother was a Miss Lumley before she was married, said to be a cousin of the earl of Scarborough, so writes Levi's son, Dennis Rivers Andrews. He was said to be a very successful businessman, and had a large stevedoring business between England and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Levi's granddaughter, Margaret Alice (Andrews) Seifert wrote: "Grandfather Andrews was a legendary character in Rio, and known as 'Captain Stubbs'. His friends called him persistent, and the others, a stubborn man. Grandmother Andrews was a beautiful woman, and very much a social light in her time, as was her daughter, Lucy Hentz. Both ran a beautiful home, and were the Grande Dames of their age."

Levi's son, Dennis, wrote: "My father had his business in Rio de Janeiro, and until 1893 he lived in Rio all the time, except for a few holiday visits to the States and England. After 1893, until his death in 1902, he lived in London from November until April, and in Rio from May to October."

Notes for John Lord Parker

John moved with his parents to Woburn in 1843. He was an apprentice in the office of the Woburn Herald and was a printer for several years also in Portland, Maine, Boston and Cambridge, Massachusetts. He was one of the publishers or the Woburn Budget 1856-1862 and publisher of the Woburn Townsman, Winchester Transcript and the Stoneham Sentinel in 1864. John was a Corporal in the Civil War and confined to Libby Prison. Libby Prison Confederate at Richmond, Virginia during the American Civil War. It gained an infamous reputation for the harsh conditions under which prisoners from the Union Army were kept. The prison was located in a three-story brick warehouse on Tobacco Row. Prior to use as a jail, the warehouse had been leased by Capt. Luther Libby and his son George W. Libby. They operated a ship's chandlery and grocery business. Libby Prison, used only for Union officers, opened in 1861. It contained eight rooms, each 103 by 42 feet. Lack of sanitation and overcrowding caused the death of many prisoners between 1863 and 1864. Because of the high death toll, Libby Prison is generally regarded as second in notoriety only to Andersonville Prison in Georgia.

After the War, John was engaged for several years in life insurance. He published the Woburn Journal from 1878-1880, and in connection established the Arlington Advocate and Lexington Minuet-Man which he sold in 1874 to his brother C. S. Parker. He was secretary of the Massachusetts Press Association 1872-1880; President of the Lynn Press Club in 1891, Editor of the Lynn Item after 1880. He was the author of History of Henry Wilson's Regiment", "Biography of Abraham Parker" and several popular songs including "We Old Boys" and "Mustered Out". He was the publisher of the directories of Woburn, Reading, Stoneham, Lynn, Wakefield and Winchester, Massachusetts and of Lancaster, New Hampshire and New York City. He held several civic offices and was the member of many social societies.

Benjamin and his children Florence and John B. were all drowned in Coos Bay, Oregon 1 Oct 1893. Following from reference: Oct 4 1893 "The Coos Bay News" which was a weekly newspaper, printed the story of the drowning. Benjamin Delauney and his wife with 3 of their children, and 2 friends took a boat across Coos Bay on a Sunday, got caught in a squall and the boat capsized. My great grandmother, her oldest boy Dell and the 17 year old girl survived. I was never informed on why my grandmother Pearl didn't go with them that day. The two children were Flossie and John ages 5 and 7 and are buried with Ben.

Notes for Cyrus Andrews

The following from "History of the Town of Essex, Massachusetts" reference: "Lieut. Cyrus Andrews, was born at Essex, and was the son of Israel Jr., and Keziah Andrews. He enlisted at Gloucester, Mass.; October 18,1861, joined the Twenty-fourth Regiment at Readville, and was mustered into the service on the 23d. About the last of October, the same year, he was ordered with Companies A, B, C and I, to guard prisoners at Fort Warren in Boston Harbor. Joined the regiment again at Readville, on the 2d of December, but on the 9th, left for Annapolis, Md. Arrived there December 12th, and on the 21st were detached for duty on board the steamer Eastern State and remained on board till the battle of Roanoike Island on the 8th of February, 1862. It was the fate of Mr. A. to double stormy Cape Hatteras no less than fourteen times. He was in the battle of Roanoke Island, N. C., on the 8th and 9th of February 1862, and it was the grateful duty of this regiment (Twenty-fourth) to receive the surrender of all the rebel prisoners taken on the island, two thousand five hundred in number. Mr. A. was also with his regiment at the battle of Newbern, 14th of March 1862, and at those of Kinston, 14th of December, Whitehall on the 16th, and Goldsboro, on the 17th of the same month and year (1862.) He left North Carolina for Hilton Head, S. C., in January following, and remained on St. Helena Island, S. C., for three months, and thence was ordered to Brook Island, S.C., where he remained until July. He was at the siege of Morris Island through July and August, and took part in the charge on the rifle pits on the 26th of August, 1863. When subsequently and next at St. Augustine, Fla., on the 4th of January 1864, Mr. Andrews re-enlisted, and was mustered in as a veteran volunteer. After a furlough of thirty days, he reported himself at Washington, D. C., and after remaining three months at Arlington Heights, he joined Butler's force at Gloucester Point, Va. On the 2d of May, 1864, embarked on Butler's expedition up the James, landing at Bermuda Hundred. He was engaged in the battles of Green Valley, Chester Station, and Drury's Bluff, all in the same month of May, at the latter of which, he was slightly wounded. In June following he was in the Battle of Richmond and Petersburg Railroad, also in that at Weir Bottom Church. The army moved across the James on the 13th of August, and fought in the battle of Deep Bottom on the next day; in that at Deep Run on the 16th of August, and again at Flusser's Mills on the 18th. Mr. A. was in the siege of Petersburg in August and September 1864, also at New Market Heights on the 29th of September. He saw fight again at Four Mile Run in October, and at Darbytown Road at two different times in the same month. Notes for William Albert Andrews

William was a piano maker in Manchester, Massachusetts. He was a Sergeant in the Civil War. William navigated, alone, a 14 1/2 foot long boat from Atlantic City to Palos, Spain in 1892. He received great attention and was presented to the Queen on the occasion of the anniversary of America. About 1901 he attempted a similar voyage but the boat was never heard from again and he is supposed to have been lost at sea about October 1901.

The website: http://www.microcruising.com/famoussmallboats.htm shows: "1878 19' Nautilus William & Asa Andrews These two brothers sailed from Beverly, Massachusetts to Cornwall England in their two masted lateen rigged center boarder." Also: "1888 12' 9" Dark Secret William Albert Andrews Failed attempt at crossing the Atlantic, but succeeded later on in 1892." also: "1892 14'6" Sapolio William Albert Andrews Crossed the Atlantic from New Jersey to Portugal, and his record for the smallest boat crossing stood for 73 years. Andrews tried again in 1898 to cross the Atlantic in the 13' "Phantom Ship" but failed after 27 days at sea. The boat was then shortened in 1899 to 12' and renamed the "Doree," but he failed again after 3 weeks. In the end, Andrews was lost at sea while attempting another Atlantic crossing with his new bride in 1901 aboard the "Flying Dutchman.""

HOBBS.

Notes for Harold Jenkins

Harold Jenkins is the grandfather of Edward Fraser Jenkins who is very interested in family history and has graciously shared information with the compiler of this Andrews Family Genealogy. Harold Jenkins had several articles published in the local papers on the subject "Old Cellars of Essex". He worked in the shipyards of Essex, Massachusetts most of his life and also operated a small farm.

Email from Edward Jenkins:

"...Old Cellars of Essex, written by my grandfather (about 1880) describes various lots and cellars he saw as he took walks in Essex wood at that time - and as near as I was able to tell, the first of these began (probably) near the end of Forest Ave. (and, I think, probably close to the rear of the land your family owned until a few years ago (that beautiful farm I used to pass on the old road from Rt. 128 into Essex). I would guess the property line of that farm probably came close to area where his first walks started - and he also described the actual foundations of cellars of the former Caleb Andrews home! ..."

Email from Edward Jenkins 4 Nov 2005:

"...Regarding the "Cellars of Essex" written by Harold Jenkins, my grandfather - if you can use them in your project, you certainly have my approval (and thanks). I think his description (including actual measurements of the two Andrews' cellars might be of particular interest to many - and I wish I was able to specifically identify those spots (maybe you or others can?)

So far as I know there were never printed in any book. My grandfather apparently did his writing during the first 10 or so years of his marriage - and at that time was sort of a reporter for the Essex news for the Gloucester paper (and maybe others for all I know). We don't know just where those articles were published - but most of them were found in an old drawer about 1933 and Dad didn't even know too much about them (Dad was born about 10 years after his parents had married and I don't think his father ever mentioned too much about his "reporting" and writing (and doubt if he ever received much in way of compensation) - think it was mostly for the pleasure of doing it. ..."

The 1880 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Harold Jenkins age 27, laborer with wife Esther age 26 and son John age 1. The 1910 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Harold Jenkins age 56, farmer with wife Esther B. age 55, married 32 years with 3 of her 4 children living: Ralph T. age 12. Next door is Preston Jenkins age 52, farmer with wife Jessie F. age 42, married 25 years with 9 of her 9 children living: Anna age 16; Russell age 15; Elias age 13; Kenneth age 12. The 1920 census for Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts shows Harold Jenkins age 66, carpenter ship yard with wife Esther B. age 65. The 1930 census shows Harold age 75, carpenter ship yard with Esther age 76.

Notes for Esther Butler Burnham

Email from Edward Jenkins, 27 May 2004:
"...I was aware (from material you sent) of your relationship in connection with Emily Burnham. Among notes my father left was a comment that Emily was quite a pretty woman, even in her later years. I assume he may have actually met her to make such an observation (he was born in 1887 - died 1987), and, of course, his mother Esther Butler Burnham (my grandmother) must have known Emily and members of the family well (she lived with my parents in E. Braintree, Mass. for the last 15 or so yeas of her life, being 96 at time of her death). She was daughter of Franklin Burnham, younger brother of Emily. My grandmother was born on Mt. Hunger."

Email from Edward Jenkins, 16 Dec 2004:
"...As my grandmother, Esther Butler Burnham Jenkins, spent mot of her last years with my parents, quite a bit of information about her birthplace (Mt. Hunger - West Gloucester) is known. For example, her father, Franklin Burnham, brother to "your Emily", had also been born at Mt. Hunger - one of 12 children of Abel. I also have the "stories" about how Abel acquired the land at Mt. Hunger - his raising of the special strawberries there - even about the knife that had been owned by a Butler who died aboard a ship while in France of smallpox, that (supposedly) was sent back to his family and (may) have resulted in several of them then dying of that dread disease (resulting in Abel obtaining the Mt. Hunger land)..."

Children of Harold JENKINS and Esther Butler BURNHAM were as follows:
+ 17175 i  John Harold JENKINS, born 30 Apr 1879 in Essex, Essex County, Massachusetts; died 31 Jul 1949; buried in Spring Street Cemetery, Essex, Massachusetts. He married Bertha M. DERBYSHIRE.

Notes for Preston Jenkins

An article in the Cape Ann (Gloucester, Massachusetts) newspaper dated Nov. 1887 advised: "The heirs of the late William Burnham have sold to Mr. Preston Jenkins 2-1/2 acres of land situated on Grove St. ...and as Preston Jenkins had married 2 years before. It would seem that this land purchase was made with the intention of Preston building his home on that property (which he did), in which he would raise his rather large family. "Memories of a Century", written by Preston's daughter, Grace Jenkins Foss, indicates when Preston was first married, he lived in a small apartment with his brother, Harold, on Milk St. Preston Jenkins raised large family (9 children). His eldest daughter, May Preston Jenkins, b. Dec. 25, 1885), later married Goldsmith; and one of her daughters, Janice Goldsmith Pulsifer was author of a number of historical articles pertaining to the Essex County area, especially Hamilton, Massachusetts, and may be found in several libraries of area.

DOWN RIVER FISHING

We gathered in the morning At the place decided on,
Some were yawning though It was an hour after dawn,
We came in the old fliver And we all brought bundles too.
Piling than near the river Enough food to see us through.
A boat we had at mooring Right up nice and near,
And we will soon be a soaring Through the water blue and clear.
Our minds were set on fishing, We soon had found a place,
But minutes after some were wishing That they head about and face
Back along the glass smooth ocean To the place they had left behind
And get away from that gentle notion That some people seem to find
Makes their stomachs feel so sick And gives than such distress,
By them the memory will stick. Believe me I am one that will confess
That though I like to fish by hand And like the ocean breezes
I think I'll do my fishing on land Until the ocean freezes.

The Descendants of Lieut. John Andrews of Ipswich, Essex County, Massachusetts. by Betty Andrews Storey  2009

The following from Linda Mears Blood: "The name of my Great Grandmother Mears is really a mystery! I remember her well, and also, visiting her and my Great Grandfather, although he died when I was only 9 years old. She had a piano that we always played when we went to visit. It had a stool that you could wind to make it higher or lower. She had a lot of purple velvet in her home as well as in her attire. She had beautiful white hair. She made all of us kids patchwork quilts with little 2” squares. She was always tatting or sewing something.

To get back to her name, which I guess if anyone had asked before I started doing genealogy, I would have said her name was Sophie. Then once I started researching and asking questions, I was told that she was called Sophie, but her name actually was Ida Sophia. My Great Grandfather's will states his wife is Sophia I. Mears. Then my parents went to Arichat, Nova Scotia, Canada, where she was born and came back with information from church records, that her name was Sophie Helene."
